Garbage classification (垃圾分类) means the classification of recyclable and unrecyclable garbage. It is very important, because it can protect our earth. On one hand, some waste will remain at the same place where they were placed for a long time. For example, it takes our earth 4000 years to degrade (降解) the glass. That will pollute our earth. On the other hand, we can make full use of the recyclable waste. One recycled glass bottle would save enough energy to power (供电) a computer for 25 minutes.

Each person produces 300 kg waste per year. To protect our earth, let's classify the garbage. Here is the garbage classification table.

Kind of waste	Colour of the bin	Waste
Recyclable waste	blue	glass, bottles, cans, paper, plastics...
Household food waste	brown	fruit peel, bones, leftovers (剩菜) ...
Hazardous waste	red	medicines, cosmetics, batteries...
Residual waste	black	waste that doesn't belong to other kinds of waste

At that time, my English wasn't as good as Chinese and Maths. Then I became clever in Grade Three and Grade Four. I studied hard. In Grade Five, my English is better than Chinese and Maths. I am so proud of myself. My teachers and classmates like me. I have many hobbies. I can feel many changes happening to me.

A Life Cycle

A butterfly is an interesting insect. But do you know how it grows? Today I will tell you the life cycle of the butterfly.

First, a mother butterfly lays some eggs on the leaves. They are small and white. Then they become caterpillars. They are fat and green, and they have many legs. They like eating leaves. After that, they make some small houses and live in them. They are brown cocoons. Finally, butterflies come out. They have four wings but they are wet, so they can't fly at once. The sun makes them dry. Now, they can fly among the flowers and they are beautiful butterflies.

This is a life cycle of the butterfly. How amazing!
